EXPLICITLY TAUGHT "SCOPE-AND-SEQUENCE": WE TEACH ALMOST ALL LETTER / SOUND / SPELLINGS IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE IN AN ORDER THAT IS GENERALLY FOLLOWING A "LEAST COMPLEX" TO "MOST COMPLEX" PATTERN

		KINDERGARTEN-READY PHONICS	https://anyonecanread.com/k-ready-phonics/
		This is a massive number of short, simple sentences - with lots of word repetition - to allow PRE-schoolers to get practice with the single consonants and the short-vowels (the entry-level foundational letters / sounds that most phonics methodologies start with).
		HIGH-FREQUENCY WORDS EARLY-ON	https://anyonecanread.com/high/
		The goal is to focus on learning the highest-frequency words in the English language, as early-on as possible. We will close out this activity when our analysis proves that we have taught enough target words to cover ~90% of the words that any reader will see no matter what text is put in front of them. This is currently under construction, but has already built enough target words to cover 50% of the words that a reader will see with any text. We count a "word seen" as an "exposure." For instance, when reading anything, the most frequent word in our language is the word "the." We will count the number of exposures to that word, and include that count in the denominator when we calculate {the % of words on a page that are our target words}. As part of this activity, there is also considerable repetition of being exposed to the target words, with no word being seen fewer than 10 times.

ASSESSMENTS
ASSESSMENTS: READING BRIEF PASSAGES TO QUICKLY FIND A STUDENT'S "READING SWEET SPOT," TO "MEET THEM WHERE THEY ARE" -- AND TO THEN PULL THEM UP GENTLY & SUCCESSFULLY FROM THERE
In the AOCR learning-to-read-experience, educators find the "lesson point" in the AOCR curriculum where a student knows ~ 98 out of every 100 words. The student will begin their reading of the AOCR curriculum at that specific lesson.
At that particular individualized starting point, a student will start with confidence, display no internal shame, will not be frustrated, and will be perfectly set to have the educator "pull them up" the reading complexity ladder, GENTLY, but steadily, by very simply just reading the passages in progressive order from the individualized starting point.
Further, the educator will pre-teach (orally) all new vocabulary words in EACH lesson BEFORE the student starts to read the passage. All new vocabulary words are conveniently presented at the beginning of EACH lesson in HOT PINK.
